Introduction to Sexual and Reproductive Health

Thursday 29 July, 7:00pm – 8:30pm (AEST)

General practitioners have a pivotal role in the provision of sexual and reproductive healthcare in Australia. However, GPs have identified several challenges in being confident to provide sexual health consultations to their patients.

This webinar will provide general practitioners with an overview of sexual and reproductive health care in general practice, covering sexual health, sexual history taking, STI screening and contraception.

Target Audience: General practitioners

Learning objectives:

- Describe effective sexual history taking in your practice setting
- Explain the importance of screening/testing and contact tracing for STIs
- Summarise the importance of accurate information for contraceptive choices

This webinar will be presented by Dr Kay Strom and facilitated by Dr Sara Whitburn.

This course is provided through collaboration between RACGP, ASHM and Iris Education.
