

Prediabetes and type 2 diabetes in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children and youth

Primary health care professional's virtual focus group

Children's Health Queensland Hospital and Health Service (CHQ HHS) invite primary health care providers in the Northern Queensland Primary Health Network region to attend a virtual focus group.

CHQ HHS are conducting a needs analysis to improve the prevention, early diagnosis and management of prediabetes and type 2 diabetes in Queensland Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children and youth. The results of this need analysis will inform strategies to optimize prevention and management of prediabetes and Type 2 Diabetes in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children and youth and enhance better integration between primary health care and hospital services.

We will be yarning with and listening to primary health care professionals to understand the barriers, enablers and gaps to the prevention and management of paediatric prediabetes and type 2 diabetes, and the needs of primary health care service providers to build the needs analysis.

We want to hear from you!
