

CPR training

For nurses and non-clinical staff working within general practice

Registrations are now open for nurses and non-clinical staff working within general practice to access free CPR training in Townsville.

Background

The Australian General Practice Accreditation Limited (AGPAL) Standards 5th Edition: Compliance Data identified that Standard 8 Criterion C8.1 Education and training of non-clinical staff was not being met in general practice. It is also noted that general practices are required to have completed basic life support training to maintain their accreditation. As a result, NQPHN have invested in the provision of CPR training across the NQ catchment to support general practice in maintaining their high standard of care.

Program

The CPR training sessions will describe the skills and knowledge required to perform cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) in line with the Australian Resuscitation Council (ARC) guidelines. This unit applies to all persons who may be required to provide CPR in a range of situations, including community and workplace settings.

Date

Tuesday 26 July 2022 or Wednesday 27 July 2022

Time

Registration: 7.30am
Program: 8am–10am

Where

James Cook University
Clinical Practice Building
(Building 500) Level 3 –
Cnr James Cook Drive and
Mount Stuart Street,
Douglas

Register online

www.surveymonkey.com/r/HFC3JZC